own through the ages—and still is. He had distinct rights; and so-called bosses currently employed does not seem to be the entire answer. There was a six-day week (Exod. 20:9,10). The employer was entitled to his wages, and they were paid promptly (Lev. 19:13). He was not to be subjected to oppression (Exod. 22:14,15). His responsibilities, however, were not quite so clearly drawn, except at a later time it appears that he was obedient (Eph. 6:5). The employer was required to deal justly (Lev. 25:43).

Evidence. The tribunals of the elders sat outside the city gates to dispense justice more formal than one might expect. There were regulations as to what might be presented and considered as evidence. Just be a truthful reporting (Exod. 20:16) and no relevant evidence could be withheld (Lev. 5:1). More than one witness was needed to secure conviction (Deut. 19:15); and this was especially true in cases where a life was at stake (Deut. 17:12).

an Eye. There has been endless discussion of the so-called Law of Talion, or retaliation, found in Exod. 21:23-25, perhaps more clearly in Lev. 24:19-20. The main point of it is said to remain in our law today in capital punishment, where an eye is taken for the taking of a life. One gets the distinct impression that in ancient times was valued more highly with far less concern for its easy taking than is true in America today. There are many examples of capital punishment of lives snuffed out for what seem to be totally insufficient causes. However, there appear to have been no clear-cut examples of the application of the law of retaliation among the Hebrews, and surely not in buff--believe in documenting everything!

I will tell you what I know about Donnie and his family. They moved to Mississippi and he got a "good job" working as a radio repairperson "on the boats." He drowned in Natchez, MS, around July 1983, and is buried in Laurel, MS. He had a second wife, Donna Blackledge (not positive about last name). They had no children. All this was told to me by Donnie's mother, Audie; and she was not having a very good day. So I was hesitant to dig any more. The Bible will be a good reason/excuse for me to question her a little more. I do not believe that she or other members of the family (Donnie's 1 half brother (and 1 dead), 3 brothers, and 1 sister) hear very much from either of the wives or the two children. Perhaps this Bible will give them all a chance to renew family ties.

My husband lives and works in St. Louis, MO; and I live in Stoneville, NC. (We are happily married; this is just where his work has taken him.) At any rate, his being in MO (and only a few hrs. away from the Forsyth area) has made it easier for us to attend the annual family reunion and to talk w/family members in person--always better, in my opinion.

I am attaching three pictures for you. Hope you enjoy seeing what Donnie and his family looked like. Can't remember if I told you, but Donnie was my husband, Lenzie's first cousin. Donnie's father, Otto, and Lenzie's father, Lyman, were brothers.

Kenyon Bible from Arkansas found.....

Here is something a friend told me about. It might help someone. I removed the years and maiden name, for security purposes.

I found an old family bible at a yard sale. It was presented to a baby on the day of his birth by the hospital and the local town merchants. The baby's complete geneology is listed in this book. Even the births, deaths, and marriages of aunts, uncles, and cousins, and some who served in the military. Here is part of what it contains. Please pass this around if you want to. I will gladly give it to anyone who can prove ownership.

On the day of his birth, July 20, ___, this family bible was presented to Kevin Kenyon and his mother Linda Sue ____ Kenyon by the merchants and businessmen of Ozark, Ark. Presented to him at Turner Memorial Hospital. His parents are Donnie Kenyon of Forsyth, Missouri, and Linda Sue ____ of Dewitt, Ark. Married June 18, ___ in Dewitt, Ark. The next page shows a brother, Kyle Kenyon born Dec 13, ___ in Pine Bluff, Ark. Much more is included. E-mail me to claim. Anyone who see's this message, please feel free to post it anywhere you think it will get recognized.

Cathy,

I believe I have the correct Donnie Kenyon. The one in my file is Donnie Lorn Kenyon, son of Otto Kenyon and Audie Gross. Donald was born June 30, 1946, and died in 1983, in Natchez, MS. He was my husband's first cousin. The whole family lived/lives in the Forsyth, Missouri, and Arkansas area. His wife's maiden name was Linda Sue Burley. The boys' names were Kevin Kristy Kenyon and Kyle Clinton Kenyon. Donnie's mother, Audie Gross Kenyon, is still living--I believe in Arkansas. We see her every year at the Kenyon-Gross family reunion in Forsyth, MO, the 1st Sat. in Aug. I would be thrilled to have this Bible and further pleased to present it to Audie at the 2002 reunion. I would be more than happy to cover any costs you have incurred, as well as postage, etc.

My sincere thanks. I look forward to hearing from you.

Cathy,

I got it! I got it! I got it!

Just got back from the post office, picking up the package. After examining it to see what info was recorded in it, I celebrated w/one of those delicious chocolate-covered cherries. Thanks!

Then, I went right to my computer and recorded several names, dates, places, etc.--info that would have never been able to appear in my (future) Kinyon family history book wo/your considerable help.

"Thanks" seems a very inadequate thing to say to you, but I assure you it is a very genuine, enthusiastic, and heartfelt thanks.

When we have the annual Kinyon (some spell it "K-e-nyon") family reunion (Sat., Aug. 3, in Forsyth, MO), I will certainly take a pic of Audie (Kevin's grandmother, Donnie's father) w/the book and send it to you.

People like you are rare and wonderful. I am privileged to know you.

Woman's kind deed reunites family with long-lost Bible

Cathy Little of Moss Point enjoys helping people with their genealogy searches. A volunteer with the Random Acts of Genealogical Kindness Web site, she often looks up information in Jackson and George counties as a favor to people in distant areas. But her latest good deed — reuniting a family with a lost Bible — was one of her most joyful experiences.

"I've done a lot of things for other people, but this is only thing I've ever done like this and it happened at Christmas," she said. "It was a wonderful Christmas present."

Little, a home health nurse, found the Bible in December 2000 when she was browsing at a Teen Challenge yard sale in Pascagoula. Looking through the book, she learned it had been given to a baby, Kevin Kenyon, on the day of his birth, July 20, 1969, at Turner Memorial Hospital in Ozark, Ark. His mother, Linda Sue Burley Kenyon, had filled out all the information in the family history section for four or five generations, including military information.

Little was compelled to find Kevin or his family and return the Bible. Her former teacher and friend, Nancy Bible, suggested she post messages about her find on various Internet Web sites.

"A couple of people wrote to me, but it wasn't the right Kevin Kenyon," Little said.

Then, during Christmas week, a year after she found the Bible, Little received an e-mail from a woman named Jean Light Kenyon, who turned out to be Kevin's cousin by marriage. Her father-in-law, Leonard Kenyon, and Kevin's father, Donald Kenyon, were brothers. She explained that family members spell their surname as either Kinyon or Kenyon.

She told them that her family had lost track of Kevin and his mother, Linda, many years ago. The Kenyons had divorced and Donald Kenyon had remarried and moved to Vicksburg, Miss., where he died.

Jean Kenyon found Little's note about the Bible when she was searching an Arkansas Web site in preparation for a family reunion in August. She plans to present the Bible at that time to Kevin's grandmother and hopes that various relatives may have information about Kevin's whereabouts.

A few weeks ago, Little carefully packed the Bible and sent it to her new Internet friend, along with a gift — a box of chocolate covered cherries. She will be keeping in touch with Jean Kenyon as they both continue their search for Kevin.

"Jean hopes to use the family reunion to track them down and get some communication started," Little said.

If anyone has information on Linda Kenyon and her son, Kevin, Little may be contacted at 5125 Hodge St., Moss Point, MS 39563, or by e-mail, Cathy@detacync.com. Jean Kenyon's e-mail is jkinyon@vact.net.

Louisiana exploration

The adventures and accomplishments of Meriwether Lewis and William Clark as they explored the Louisiana Purchase in the early 1800s are well known. But other explorers, although not as famous as Lewis and Clark, have been notable in opening the American frontier.

A 25-page essay on the exploits of such men as Sir William Dunbar, George Hunter, John Sibley, Thomas Freeman and others instrumental in the Louisiana territory has been reprinted by Provincial Press. Written in 1904, the essay, "The Exploration of the Louisiana Frontier: 1803-1806," is said to be the most authoritative on this subject. The author is Isaac Joslin Cox, who was then with the Department of History, University of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Although not genealogical in nature, the historical essay is an excellent source about the lesser-known men who braved the dangers of the western wilderness.

The writing may fill in some details about these times for family historians whose ancestors were among the frontiersmen.

The soft-cover book is documented with footnotes on sources used by Cox in compiling the essay, but it is not indexed.

Order for $12.50 plus $2.50 for postage and handling to Provincial Press, P.O. Box 12355, Birmingham, AL 35219-9365.
